Hong Kong Cemetery is located on the western side of Happy Valley and was previously known as the Protestant Cemetery or the Colonial Cemetery.

It was officially consecrated in 1845. It is the oldest western cemetery in Hong Kong. It is one of several cemeteries located side by side along Wong Nai Chung Road.

The main attraction of the cemetery is the historic stone monuments and graves which present a colourful picture of the personalities in old Hong Kong who had contributed to the City's success in the past 150 years. But much more than graves are there.

The tour will allow you to know some of the famous people or someone whom you may not know, but all of them have made and contributed to the history of Hong Kong.
